* As in China women always marry persons of a different surname, it necessarily follows, that all 表兄弟 are of a different surname. † The substitution of 約, covenant, for 遺詔, testament, by the translators of the Sacred Scripture, is very objectionable, for a testament is made by one and comes in force after the death of the testator; a covenant is made by two and is dissolved by the death of one party. By using covenant for testament, we convert Hebrew 9, 16. 17. into absurd nonsense.
